

MEDIEVAL MATERIAL CULTURE IN THE CARPATHIAN BASIN (11TH–16TH CENTURIES).
SMALL FINDS BETWEEN FUNCTION, USE AND REUSE

International Colloquium 8th–10th December, 2016

Mureş County Museum, Târgu Mureş, Romania

Call for Papers

The Mureş County Museum in collaboration with the Medieval Studies Department of the Central European University (Budapest) invite paper proposals on the general topic of medieval material culture in the Carpathian Basin, with special focus on the function and context of small finds. The talks can pertain to the fields of archaeology, art history, archaeometry and history.

The conference will include thematic sessions for registered delegates and a thematic posters section.

• We welcome abstracts on the following subtopics:

I. Working with small finds: theoretical and methodological approaches

- may include papers on small finds and the study of medieval society, problematic research issues connected to medieval small finds, relevant typo-chronologies and their interpretation, terminological aspects, computing methods

II. Medieval technology and production of small finds

- can refer to specific results in the study of paleotechnologies, presentation of reference groups, production lots/series, production centres, identity of the manufacturers as reflected in small finds

III. Context and function

- concentrates on the contextualisation of small finds; symbolic and representative functions; small finds as markers of medieval social practices; everyday life reflected through small finds

IV. Changing function; changing context

- analysis of the reuse and/or the alteration of an original function; particular aspects of repair, reuse and recontextualisation; subjective value as function change; medieval heirlooms.

• Proposals that belong to the general topic of medieval small finds and are not listed among the thematic guidelines outlined above are also encouraged.

• Posters may include brief outlines, troubleshooting and working hypotheses related to recent discoveries or problematic finds. Descriptive archaeological reports may also be submitted in this section.
